ANOTHER WAR CLOUD.

Interesting information comes out of the East to-day. A fleet of Russian warships has sailed from Vladivostok for Korea. Several Russian war vessels are also bound for Korea. Russia seems bent on driving Japan out of Korea. Japan naturally resents this. But more important and significant of the serious situation in the East is the report that Russia is to secure harbor privileges at Port Arthur, and to be allowed to connect that place with points on the Trans-Siberian railway. The Russians are to build the railways, but China is to have the privilege of buying them in at a price to be agreed on later.

If this story be true, Russia has finally succeeded in a step which she has long contemplated. A port farther south than Vladivostok has been a pressing Russian need for many years, and the East is now on the way to securing it. Manchuria would soon be dominated by the Russians. It is difficult to imagine that as a lesser Russia would not seek to control any country in which she got a footing. The geographical position of Korea, and the wish of both China and Japan, as well as Russia, to keep a hand on it, make conditions that are not conducive to tranquility in the East. If these rumors are founded on fact, we shall probably witness a great congregation of warships in the neighborhood of the Korean peninsula. The great powers are nothing, if not jealous of the territorial gains of one another. If Russia is taking the first step toward grabbing China, or all of it that can be of service to her, she must prepare for emphatic protests from other powers, and not only European governments, but the nearer Japan is to be reckoned with.

PUBLIC BUSINESS.

There is little or nothing to disturb the dulness of a rather exceptionally dull political campaign in this city. Those who had hoped for something lively and a few months ago there were expectations of that kind have found themselves disappointed.

This might have been written of our own city campaign, but it was not. It was written in the Philadelphia Press of the Philadelphia city campaign. It shows, however, that a similar state of feeling prevails in that city to that which prevailed here. It is less remarkable in Philadelphia, however, than in Indianapolis, because Philadelphia is safely, happily, if not desperately, one-sided as to politics, while Indianapolis is fighting ground in every campaign. And yet we know by the results of our last election that the extraordinary sanity of it, the entire absence from it of heat and bitterness and excitement and even of exaggeration—for the partisan statements on both sides respectively were simply laughed at—in no wise betokened indifference. We had a large vote and a decisive result. The people had very clearly made up their minds, and they emphatically declared them. The same thing may be argued in Philadelphia, but as to political results the conclusion seems to be foregone. We might hope, however, that both elections reflect a condition which shall become permanent.

If we take a broad view of our politics it seems to us that there is much to encourage the belief that we are becoming sadder years after year. For one thing, it is undeniable that sectionalism, which as much and so long poisoned our politics after the war, is still here. For another thing, it is undeniable that the principle of civil service reform is making headway throughout the country, and in every phase of public affairs. It is coming to the front so emphatically in cities as to have almost the insensibility of a municipal reform, pure and simple. With this comes the conviction that city management is a business matter. We believe the conviction will grow until city elections will be decided on that basis. That they can ever be wholly decided on that basis is, however, hardly possible, or at least not probable in the present condition of feeling. Men will still largely decide according to political party alignment in contesting for city affairs.

But with the elimination of the spoils of office as a prize in city elections, the increasing good sense of the time will cause these elections more and more to turn upon reasons of business fitness and not on reasons of national politics. The whole matter is in a broad way the result of the general growth of intelligence. Young men and women who have been educated in the common schools and educated by daily reading of the newspapers are coming to take part more and more in public affairs. The generation that has had large opportunities in this way is coming on to be the generation that is ordering things now, and so these things partake of the greater breadth of view and higher enlightenment which these people have. We believe nothing is so certain in the future, and in the near future, as the thorough establishment of the public service in every city on the basis of merit.

We have living examples in the great contracting companies here that are engaged in improving our streets. We see that the men they choose to work for them are men capable of doing a full day's work, and we see that they see to it that the men do a full day's work. Yet, under the spoils system, when the city wants precisely similar men, it does city work. It does not engage the best men it can find, and see that they render full service. It looks first after the politics of the men, and then looks to see (for this is what it figures down to in fact) how little work these men can do; in other words, what easy berth can be provided for them. As a rule, the capabilities, the actual bodily strength and the mental equipment of the men who do the street work for a city are not at all in the same grade with any similar number of men engaged by private companies. At the same time they receive higher wages and work fewer hours. Why should taxpayers be cheated of their due? The day will come when the demand that a thing like a municipal administration, which is purely and simply the management of the concerns of a great corporation, shall be managed like the concerns of great corporations in private, as the Western Paving and Supply Company, or the Indiana Bermudez Company manages its affairs; as Kingman & Co. or the Atlas works, or the Parry Road Cart Company manage their business.

We shall have clerks, laborers, men busy with routine work entirely, which even in its simplest forms is more or less a thing of training and technicality, chosen, to begin with, without reference to their political beliefs and on some common standard far to all who wish to compete for vacancies, and maintained in their places so long as they do their duty efficiently. City elections will then come to be simply what elections are in a bank or in any other private corporation, namely, a choice by the stockholders of a board of directors and officers to manage the affairs for a given time. New directors and officers may be chosen at each successive election, but this does not disturb the clerks in a bank, the men who do the routine work in a factory.

What sort of success would a private business have if it did? We may have change of policies and change of directors without changing work people clear down to a charwoman or janitor, if it is in any administration. There is reason to think, encouraging reason, that this view is becoming not a mere theory, but a living principle with greater numbers of people each year, and so we progress hopefully toward the time when we may eliminate politics (in a bad sense) from our city business.

"Unceasing lies the head that wears a fez."—The Sultan.

Each pugilist is now boasting that when he sees the other he will put a different face on the matter.

Russia's coup in the East means that she is trying to feather her own nest.

The death of the Rev. John Hillard Ranger came as a shock to a host of friends and acquaintances in this city. He was one of the best-known clergymen in his church, and he always occupied a prominent place in its annals. His character was a singularly beautiful one. He fulfilled in many ways the ideal of the minister. He was markedly faithful in his pastoral work. Sympathy and tenderness were so wrought in him that he was able to appreciate keenly the sorrows of those to whom he ministered, and he possessed within a brave spirit, which inspired hope and confidence in others.

To those who knew him well, there was something impressive in his unflinching success in special undertakings seemed remote, he never gave up until the last resource had been exhausted. The demands on him were many. Few outside of his own congregation knew that he was engaged constantly in looking after the affairs of missions, or that a congregation in another town of the State called him its minister. His church being in the heart of the city, he became later a public character, to the extent that calls were made on him frequently by persons not members of his congregation, who sought Christian sympathy and aid. Thus his life was a busy one. His quiet hours were few, and he was not out from many of the pleasures of life by his many employments. As a preacher, Mr. Ranger was earnest, and he spoke directly and pertinently to his congregation. It was characteristic of one who never in any way sought to draw attention to himself that he refused to take advantage of opportunities to preach what might be called popular sermons. And yet at times he would apply his texts to public questions as to indicate a wide range of interests. He excelled in short extemporaneous talks, and these were often singularly graceful and beautiful. There was about him that which appealed for love and sympathy, and they who were disappointed in him were never disappointed. What he preached, he lived. A gentler, kinder or better man has never been part of this community.

It is going to keep England on the stretch to look after Russia in Korea and Venezuela at the same time.

Even the publishers could hardly wish for a more extensive review than has been given Senator Sherman's contribution to historical literature.

John Sherman's book is making the friends of McKinley uneasy. The uneasiness does not stop with the friends of McKinley.

Mr. Olney has fallen heir to the rumor that there are differences existing between the chief executive and the State Department.

Professor Kendrick, who died at Rochester on Tuesday, will be lovingly remembered by many generations of students. The man who fifty years ago taught at Union University (now Colgate) and at the University of Rochester he taught the Greek language, interpreted Greek literature and exemplified the spirit of ancient Greek culture in a way that powerfully influenced and developed all who came into his class room. He was an intense lover of all that was high and fine in literature, and his frequent readings of the best English poems to his classes did much to cultivate in them the love of literature. The cadences of his voice as he read with loud appreciation Byron's "Childe Harold" will never die out of the memory of those who were privileged to hear him read. There are few anthologies of English verse better than Dr. Kendrick's three volumes of "Poetical Favorites." While his range of knowledge of literature was very wide and catholic, in his own specialty it was profound and erudite. He was saturated with Greek literature and Greek life; and in his classroom work his aim was so to draw upon the stores of his knowledge as to develop in his students not only scholarship, but character.

Did Senator Sherman forgive Mr. Foster or didn't he? A careful perusal of the letter of forgiveness which he wrote to the latter fails to throw any light on the matter.

There is no fear that the supply of morticians will not equal the demand.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

WALBOLING
ABSOLUTELY PURE

What's the Use?
Don't coddle a woe. Don't think about your foe.
What's the use?
It only makes you woe, and keeps you in a woe.
Don't talk about your woe. There's no use in it.
It only gives you pain and suffering again.
What's the use?
Don't talk of your disaster. It makes the tears flow faster.
What's the use?
It only keeps you weeping, and hinders you from sleeping.
What's the use?
Don't talk of your mishap. It's only one more trap.
What's the use?
It only annoys and your peace of mind destroys.
What's the use?
Don't talk of your affliction. It only causes friction.
What's the use?
It opens an old sore, and worries you no more.
What's the use?
Don't talk of your sorrow. Trouble you only for a day.
What's the use?
It only can annoy, and your peace of mind and mad.
What's the use?
What's the use?

Love's Wooing.
Love caught and held her close and pressed her to his breast.
With a passionate whispered word:
Light in his fond, deep eyes was like sunlight
And Nadine beth saw and heard.
Not one small whispered word did the fair Nadine vouchsafe.
Not one little whispered word:
But a softly trembling smile and a softly watchful love both saw and heard.

Moscow's Imperial Theater, one of the largest in the world, came near collapsing recently. The land around it having been drained, the piles on which the theater is built were exposed to the air and rotted away, but solid stone foundations are being placed under it, so that it may be ready for the coronation festivities next spring.

"What's the latest news of the war?" was the surprising question that staggered the ship William H. Connor, as she sailed into Portland, Me., one day last week. The question was put by the captain, and the officers eyed him suspiciously until he explained that when he sailed from Koli, Japan, on May 8 last, the China-Japan war was in full swing, and he wanted to know how the fighters were getting along. The war had been over so long the customs officers had forgotten all about it.

Gangs of "skimmers" men who slaughter deer wholesale solely for the hides, are again at work in the mountains of Curry county, Oregon. A hunting party just returned from the region relates that it was not unusual to come across a dozen or more carcasses of deer in the course of a day, left to rot by the law violators. It is estimated that more than seven hundred deer have been killed in that section this summer solely for their hides. The "skimmers" find a ready sale for the hides, and make much money at the wretched business.

INDIANA PEOPLE AND AFFAIRS.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding that Indianapolis election results, Col. John New will continue in charge of the counting-room of the Harrison boom and will look after all advertising contracts.—Chicago Times-Herald (Ind. Rep.).

Indiana's Republicans—some of them, particularly the politicians—are disturbed over the probable effect at the next elections of the somewhat rigorous Nicholson temperance law. Unlike New York Republicans, they have no Tammany to charge with the paternity of the obnoxious provisions.—New York Telegram (Ind.).

Mr. W. H. Hart, of the Indiana Republican executive committee, says that the Indiana delegates to the national convention will all be aggressive Harrison men. A receptive candidate and an aggressive following ought to be able, between them, to block the situation, if they can't entirely control it.—Philadelphia Record (Dem.).

The Indiana Farmers' Alliance has decided to cut loose from the Populist party and devote itself to the objects for which it was organized—the fostering of measures for the substantial benefit of the agricultural classes. If the order had adopted this policy from the beginning it would have been better for all concerned.—Kansas City Star (Ind.).

Indiana Republicans, it is said, are echelons for Harrison, and will make a desperate fight for his nomination. If New York should so democratically elect a Republican, their claim on the basis that Indiana will be the pivotal State and can only be satisfied with Harrison's nomination. A favorite son of Indiana is Governor Eliot, who is being taken seriously at home for first or second place on the Democratic national ticket. There is nothing hushful about Indiana.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican (Ind.).

The Professional—Beg pardon, sir; but you wouldn't mind my asking you for a quarter to get something to eat with?

The Sophisticated—Not at all, not at all; and I trust that you won't mind my bidding you a kind farewell, without going through the preliminary of parting with a quarter.

TO-MORROW'S FOOT-BALL.

BUTLER AND WABASH WILL OPEN THE COLLEGE SEASON.

Condition of the Two Eleven and Probability of An Even Contest—Game To Be Called at 3 O'Clock.

The first intercollegiate foot-ball game of the season in Indianapolis will be played to-morrow afternoon between Butler and Wabash. The contest promises to be an even one. The Butler team was handicapped until this week because the old men did not care to play. There has been no lack of men who are willing to go in on the "scrub" and lend their assistance to help the "varsity" out, but the men of most experience did not get warm in enthusiasm until after the defeat of the "youngsters," at Louisville.

The outlook now is much brighter and the enthusiasm is again slowly rising. The return this week of two old players whose reputations on the gridiron are established, and the development of another young player of undoubted ability, has revived the drooping spirits and the practice this week has been decidedly snappy. Charley Baker, who played on the team in former years, and who was considered the only rival of the great Lackey of Purdue fame, returned to college this week to take up a post-graduate course, and will play his old position at right half. Parker, one of the best ends Butler ever had, is also back and will play the right end of the line. "Blinky" Freeman, who balanced up the other end so beautifully last year, is also back in his old place. Thompson, a promising young player on the Columbus High school team, has entered college and will probably play left half back and will probably play left half back and will probably play left half back.

The Butler team will probably line up as follows: E. Parker (160 pounds), conspicuous in his blue shirt last year, will play right end. He is very fast, gets down the field quickly on a kick, and understands the game thoroughly. Captain Lister (165 pounds) will be at his old position at right tackle. He is a powerful man and will keep his opponents guessing throughout the game. Lister, for a big man, is very fast, and will be depended upon to make many gains for Butler.

Osborn (180 pounds), at right guard, is another strong man. He is an excellent hole-maker and fast. The right side of the Butler line appears to be very strong. Wright (170 pounds), at center, is a problem. This is his first year on the team, and he lacks the experience and head work which can only be learned on the field. Wright's weight is also against him. The advantage in him is that he is a willing, hard worker, and with plenty of nerve. Loop (170 pounds) played on the "varsity" a part of last season, and did satisfactorily. He is not so fast a man as Osborn, but should appear to good advantage on the defensive, as he plays a steady, reliable game.

The position of right tackle is still an open question. S. Parker (165 pounds), the most likely candidate, has been sick all week with neuritis, and may not be able to play Saturday. In condition, he is a strong, heady player, who understands the game. If Parker is unable to play, Clymer (160 pounds), or Core (160 pounds), will play the position. Both are comparatively new men, and have much to learn. Freeman (160 pounds), at left end, is one of the strongest men on the team. He breaks into interference sharply and tackles fiercely. He is particularly good on defensive play.

Quarter-back has not yet been permanently filled. A. Loop (140) and Stevenson (145 pounds) are the most promising candidates. Loop has had the more experience. He gets into the interference, but is not so strong on defensive play. He is also a little bit uncertain as yet in passing the ball, and inclined to be in too much of a hurry. Stevenson has the making of an excellent quarter, but has hardly had sufficient work in that position to fit him for a big game. He has developed into one of the best tacklers on the team. This makes him a very strong man on defense.

The Butler team will probably line up as follows: E. Parker (160 pounds), conspicuous in his blue shirt last year, will play right end. He is very fast, gets down the field quickly on a kick, and understands the game thoroughly. Captain Lister (165 pounds) will be at his old position at right tackle. He is a powerful man and will keep his opponents guessing throughout the game. Lister, for a big man, is very fast, and will be depended upon to make many gains for Butler.

ensive play, but in offensive work he does not follow the ball as closely as he should. He handles the ball well, but between him and the center in front of him there is a delay sometimes in getting the ball into play.

The positions of half-back seem to be settled. Charley Baker (150 pounds), at right half, is one of the strongest players that Butler ever produced. He has been out of harness for three years and is hardly yet in condition for a hard game. Baker will be used as a line half-back. He runs low and hard, and generally makes a gain when he hits the line. Thompson (150 pounds), at left half, is fast and willing, but lacks experience. He follows his interference closely, but in a scrimmage seems unable to keep his feet.

Rhinehart (150 pounds), the most promising candidate for full-back, may not be able to play Saturday, on account of illness. He is a fairly fast man, a good kicker and tackler. If Rhinehart does not play Saturday, Roberts will fill that position. His greatest fault is his weight, which is only 135 pounds. He kicks well, however, works hard, and for a light man tackles in good style. Cunningham (145 pounds) and Noll (145 pounds) are both good substitute halves, and one of them will probably relieve either Baker or Thompson in the second half of the game Saturday.

The Wabash Preparations. Manager Welborn has sent The News the following account of the Wabash team: Flannagan, right end, played a brilliant game against DePauw last week. He broke up the interference in good style and made a number of timely tackles. He is strong on defensive play. Ashman (155 pounds) plays right tackle. He is the veteran on the team, this being his fourth season in that position. While he is light, he is very fast and knows the game thoroughly.

Parrell (155 pounds), at right guard, is also one of the old men on the team, this being his third season. He breaks through sharply, and is used to good advantage in carrying the ball. Rauch (170 pounds) plays center. He played that position in one or two games last season, and this week this fall has been first-class. He is a cool, navy player, who never loses his head, and plays the game for all it is worth.

Mulroney (160 pounds), plays left tackle. He is another new man, but has played the three games that he has played this fall he has shown that he has the qualifications necessary to play that position. Patterson (165 pounds), at left end, is one of the most promising men of the team. He is a fast runner, gets down the field well on a kick and tackles in good style. Sullivan (160 pounds), at right end, is the son of an ex-Mayor Sullivan, of this city. In the game with DePauw he handled the team admirably and made every play count. At quarter he handles the ball cleanly and follows up the play closely.

Clouser (140 pounds), the right half-back, played as a substitute last season. He is a fast runner, gets down the field very effectively against the DePauw team as a full-back.

Reed (145 pounds), the left half-back, is a new man at Wabash this season, but has played the game thoroughly. He is a fast runner and a good tackler. Sullivan (160 pounds), at right end, is the son of an ex-Mayor Sullivan, of this city. In the game with DePauw he handled the team admirably and made every play count. At quarter he handles the ball cleanly and follows up the play closely.

A big delegation will come with the team from Crawfordsville, and the scenes of former years on the foot-ball field will be repeated. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

THE ARTILLERY AT BLOOMINGTON.

I. U. Seaton in a Well Played Game—

Bloomington, Ind., October 25.—The Indianapolis Light Artillery eleven defeated the State University team here yesterday in a well-played game, by a score of 18 to 8. Both teams played fast ball, and the result was in doubt until time was called at the end of the second half. The Artillery line was much heavier than that of the university eleven, and the big forwards broke through sharply, blocking kicks and breaking up interference in a way that was discouraging to the college boys. Both elevens played a good team game, and the contest was one of the best ever seen here.

The university ends were unable to break up the interference of the Artillery boys, and there were a number of runs of from twenty to thirty yards each. In the second half Osgood, the university coach, went into the game and gave an exhibition of how that position ought to be played.

For the university team Hunt, Owings, Endicott and King were conspicuous. The running and tackling of the first two was of a high order. Captain Jones put up a good game at right end and was responsible for many of the long runs made by the Artillery boys. Hall played a much improved game at quarter, and showed that with confidence in his center he is all right.

Marion Defeats Logansport. The Marion foot-ball eleven defeated the Logansport Athletic Club team at Marion, yesterday, by a score of 12 to 0.

Death of Sister Felicie.

Sister Felicie died at the Home of the Little Sisters of the Poor, in East Vermont street, yesterday afternoon of typhoid fever. She was well-known in the charitable work of the organization. She will be buried to-morrow in Holy Cross cemetery.

SWALLOWED HIS TEETH.

Capt. Wagner, of Allentown, Pa., in a Dangerous Condition.

Allentown, Pa., October 25.—Capt. H. C. Wagner, a widely-known veteran of this city, and secretary of a leading brewing company, is in a critical condition as a result of swallowing his false teeth. When he retired Wednesday night he did not remove his artificial teeth, as was his custom. At 3 o'clock in the morning he was awakened by a choking sensation in his throat. He sat up in bed, when he was seized with violent spasms of vomiting, but it was not until some time later that he discovered that he had swallowed his teeth, and that they had lodged in some very uncomfortable place.

A physician was summoned, but the teeth were beyond the reach of the doctor's appliances. Captain Wagner was advised to hasten to St. Luke's Hospital, at Bethlehem, six miles away, and have an operation performed. He lost no time in starting out on the terrible ride, during which it was frequently feared that he would choke to death. Arriving at the hospital, the Captain learned that the surgeon would not operate, and he hastened home. He subsequently several doctors tried to fish out the teeth with probes, but they could not be reached, and they expressed the opinion that he had passed into the stomach. The doctors advised Captain Wagner to go to Philadelphia and have them taken out by a surgical operation. It is feared that unless this is done peritonitis will result.

Where Is the Frank?

A great curiosity would be a man who kept his mouth shut and lived to regret it.
